the odds are at the point in time, you can even bet today. You can go to Vegas and bet on who is going to win the world series for example.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Right.

SENATOR HALL: How do you envision, if you don't see those parlors as being something that is established and I'm not so sure that maybe they may not be what is established, but what do you see being more prevalent and I'm thinking of it in relation to being able to track the revenue that would be generated?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: It could be done both ways. You could have...well, like when you mentioned Las Vegas, these gambling places have all types. They have roulette, cards, dice, everything.

SENATOR HALL: Right, they have the casino gambling, they have the horse off-track betting, they have the bookmaking all in the same locations.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Right, the slot machines.

SENATOR HALL: Right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But see what we would do is look at how it should be tailored for...

SPEAKER WITHEM PRESIDING

SPEAKER WITHEM: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...for Nebraska and you could have it both ways. An individual could be licensed to book and you could also have establishments that are licensed and maybe a group of these people who are licensed to be bookies would come there and rent space and have their own clientele or the one who operates that place may have employees and naturally we'd want them a certain age, be bonded and regulate it like...maybe like they would do in Las Vegas.

SENATOR HALL: And I remember when we had off-track betting was legal here in the State of Nebraska for a short time. There were just basically store fronts...
